

TRIBUTARIES[®] Adds HDMI Distribution Amp

Affordable One-to-Four Design a Powerful Hi-Def AV Solution

Orlando, Florida, August 2008—Tributaries[®] Cable, the Florida company whose position as the value-performance leader in quality cable and installation products for multi-room, home theater, and music systems is well established, has made an important new addition to its family of whole-house AV hardware solutions. The new Tributaries Model HDA140 is a one-in/four-out HDMI distribution amplifier that allows a single source to supply video and digital audio, simultaneously, to as many as four rooms, zones, systems, or screens, each as much as 30 meters/100 feet distant.

The HDA140 is fully HDMI 1.3 and HDCP compliant, and supports the full range of associated features over all of its connections, including 1440p resolution, Deep Color 10/12/16-bit signal-formatting, xvYCC Color Space, and Dolby TrueHD[®] and DTS-HD Master[®] audio systems, as well as refresh-rates up to 120 HZ, accommodating the latest, highest-performance television and projector designs. Just as important, the Tributaries design's custom-tailored data-signal amplification and equalization, and buffered output circuitry eliminate signal losses, ensuring that pristine hi-def video and unimpaired audio performance are delivered over every connection.

Thanks to the capabilities of HDMI interconnection, Tributaries HDA140 permits a single HDMI output, such as that of an AV receiver, a satellite or digital-cable set-top box, or DVD/Blu-ray disc player, to supply multiple screens or even satellite AV-surround systems throughout the home. What's more, for expansion needs a second HDA140 may be "cascaded," yielding a total of some seven distributed rooms, screens, or zones.

Tributaries' HDA140 HDMI distribution amplifier features three front-panel LEDs displaying status of HDMI/DVI, HDCP, and SYNC, and is pre-packaged with a dedicated 5VDC power supply. The HDA140 is available immediately, at a manufacturer's suggested price of $450.
