

Tributaries® Unveils Installer-Friendly Solutions at EHX

Orlando, Florida—March 25, 2010—Tributaries® the established value leader in high-end cables and installation accessories, continues to provide installers with timesaving integration products. The AC200 bidirectional audio converter and the TRIBDM cabling designed to be used with Crestron® DigitalMedia™ Systems are just a few of the handy solutions Tributaries is unveiling this week at EH Expo in Orlando.

Tributaries' AC200 is a bidirectional Audio converter. With three different types of connections, digital coax, Toslink® optical and 2 channel analog R/L audio, the AC200 can convert all three signals into any desired format. Analog audio can be converted to digital and digital audio can be converted to analog. Conversion is done simultaneously without any signal loss and provides three clean split audio signals all available on the output end. The AC200 is incredible easy to install and use, making it a valuable tool for any installer. (MSRP $225)

As automation continues to dominate the custom landscape, Tributaries' expands its cabling solutions keeping installers in step. Designed to be used with the with Crestron® DigitalMedia™ systems, the TRIBDM is made with:

- (1) 18/2 + (1) 22/2 shielded with an overall gray PVC jacket
- (1) Category 5E cable in a yellow jacket swept to 400MHz
- (1) Category 6E braided, shielded cable in a blue jacket swept to 660MHz
- Overall blue PVC jacket with a red stripe

The TRIBDM carries UL® CM/CMR/c(UL)us ratings along with the additional ratings of FT4 and CMG and is fully compliant with RoHS standards.

TRIBDM is available now on spools of 500ft weighing approximately 75lbs and for additional installer support, the cabling includes sequential foot markers.
