What has been your user experience with Tributaries HDMI cables?

When Overture chooses a product for our clients, it must pass rigorous testing before we offer it for sale. The qualities that we look for, whether it is an HDMI cable or a state-of-the-art speaker are: (1) value, (2) quality of construction, (3) quality of engineering, (4) product availability, and (5) reliability. Reliability requires the test of time. HDMI cables are notorious for not being reliable. As the length gets longer the problems increase. We have found that Tributaries HDMI cables meet the criteria listed above. We use and recommend their Series 7 and 9 HDMI cables. We have used them from one-meter lengths all the way to 20 meters (with a line amp). We can count on these cables to perform, and most of all we know that they will allow Overture to meet or exceed our customer's expectations. And that is our goal at Overture. Our Mission statement is very simple: "Always do what's best for the customer." That's why we have chosen Tributaries HDMI cables.
